

UFLaw 2002 Fall Class Well-Qualified, Diverse

The UFLaw Fall 2002 class (top two pictures) gathered in Schott Courtyard Aug. 15 for their first day of legal training — “Introduction to the Profession” — organized by the Office of Student Affairs. UFLaw Ambassadors (bottom left) — upper class students selected for interest and ability to help the entering students — were each assigned 10-12 newcomers to assist with the transition to law school and to advise throughout the semester. Serving as Intro to Law/Ambassadors’ Coordinators are Angie Chesser, Ryan Cobbs and Marilyn Gandarilla.

A record 2,550 students — the largest and one of the most qualified candidate pools in law school history — applied to UFLaw for Fall 2002, a 40 percent increase over Fall 2001.

“Our fall enrollees should be very pleased to know there were more than 12 applicants for each of their seats,” said Assistant Dean for Admissions Michael Patrick (left, with new Director of Admissions Lewis Hutchison).

Class statistics indicate a minority enrollment of 26 percent (comparable to past six years), median GPA of 3.57 and LSAT of 159, and average age of 23. The class is 54 percent female, and 93 percent are from Florida.

‘Week of Remembrance’

UFLaw student organizations are encouraged to participate in a “Week of Remembrance” with their own activities to help the overall campus remember and honor victims of 9/11. Programs planned by UF to date include:

- Carillon piece by Dr. Willis Bodine written in memory of 9/11. (Students will be asked to join in a moment of silence.)
- Memorial service at 3 p.m., University Memorial Auditorium, sponsored by School of Music.
- Accent speaker Thursday, Sept. 12, University Memorial Auditorium.

Pro Bono Environmental Opportunity

The local “Adopt a River” program is looking for a volunteer to help identify and write grant proposals to foundations interested in conservation. Adopt a River focuses on education, awareness and hands-on activities — such as river clean-ups, non-native invasive plant removal and a Santa Fe Riverfest — to change attitudes and teach habits that will benefit aquatic ecosystems and water quality in North Florida.

Details on the group’s activities and needs are posted outside Environmental and Land Use Law Program Director/Professor Alyson Flournoy’s office (310 Holland Hall). If you are interested, contact her (flournoy@law.ufl.edu) or Adopt a River’s Executive Director, Fritzi Olson (352.264.6827).

• CENTER FOR CAREER SERVICES •

Apply by Friday for Committees

Looking for more involvement with Career Services? Want to have a say in its policies, programs and plans? Apply for membership to Career Services or Pro Bono committees. Applications due by 5 p.m. Friday (Aug. 30).

To apply for the Career Services Committee, submit a letter of interest addressed to Assistant Dean Kathy Urbach. To apply for Pro Bono Committee, submit a letter of interest addressed to Assistant Director Jessie Howell. Pro Bono is a one-year appointment and will meet twice per month. Students will be assigned as a liaison to current programs and work on developing new ones.

OCI Sessions Mandatory

To participate in On-Campus Interviewing (OCI), students MUST attend an e-Attorney orientation session either today (Aug. 26), 9:10-10:20 a.m. or Tuesday (Aug. 27), 4-5 p.m. in the Bailey Courtroom.

Sign Up for Mock Interviews

Practice interviewing techniques with — and get immediate feedback from — practicing attorneys at a Mock Interview Program Sept. 9–13. Interested students should drop off a resume and sign up for an interview date/time after Sept. 1 and no later than 5 p.m. Sept. 6. First-come, first-served – there was a waiting list last year.

‘Real World’ Class Begins Thursday

Fourth- through sixth-semester students interested in a new Law Practice Management and Practical Skills course should sign up in Career Services as soon as possible. The class begins Thursday (Aug. 29) and will meet following Thursdays from 6:30–8:30 p.m. in 357 Holland Hall.

The course will help you prepare for the transition from school to practice, and you will earn a Certificate of Completion in Law Practice Management. There is no homework, final, paper or grade – just the opportunity to listen and learn Legal Technology Institute Director Andy Adkins is joining with Larry Marraffino, Esq. to teach a course on Law Practice Management and Practical Skills, beginning this Thursday. Students can sign up in Career Services.

Wireless Internet Areas Expand at College of Law

By Mark Bergeron, Head of Computing Services

Wireless networking is available at the College of Law. With the appropriate PC Slot adapter and a Gatorlink username, your laptop should be able to browse the World Wide Web, access e-mail and log on to chat rooms from areas in and around the law school. The following locations provide the fastest wireless connections:

Bergeron

- Classrooms. All rooms in which classes are held (with exception of Bailey Courtroom.)
- Outdoor concourse area. Coverage includes covered area outside 190 Holland classrooms, most picnic tables east of Holland Hall and stretching across to Bruton-Geer Hall, open air areas between Holland and Bruton-Geer, and outdoor seating areas outside the cafeteria and Student Lounge.
- Library Reading rooms (first & second floors).
- “Bleed-over” into other areas. Most areas surrounding those listed above will provide an acceptable signal.

Our wireless equipment supports a maximum of 11 Mbps. For comparison, 1 to 2 Mbps is the typical throughput available using DSL and cable modems, which is about 25 times faster than a standard 56k modem. A wireless connection will be at least 25 and up to 200 times as fast as a modem connection. Your connection speed will decrease as distance increases from the nearest antenna and as the concentration of wireless users increases in any given area. UF has chosen Direct Sequence Spread Spectrum (DSSS) — one of two competing, basic types of 802.11b products that use different transmission technologies. The two types are not compatible, so FH-based client devices will not work on the UF system. Additionally, a DSSS product should carry the ‘WiFi’ logo to ensure compatibility with the UF network. The standard for UF is called 802.11b, “Wi-Fi.”

To use wireless networking on campus, you need an 802.11b wireless Ethernet PC Slot Card. We recommend the Cisco Aironet 350 wireless client adapter. Older Cisco Aironet 340 series are available and will work. However, the 350 series has higher output capability and advanced performance features. Other 802.11b wireless adapters labeled “WiFi” should also work, however they may not support all the features or perform as well as the Cisco Aironet cards. Therefore, we do not support their use.

The Campus Bookstore (second floor Holland Hall) stocks Aironet 350 cards for $149. The cards also are available through Florida Bookstores (most locations) and via mail-order.

Users should be aware there are security issues with this system. A wireless network is a shared environment, which means that anyone within RF reception distance can receive every packet you send. (The level of expertise required to accomplish this is quite low.) For this reason, you should never use unsecured connections to remote accounts. The following uses would compromise your account userid and password if run over an unsecured channel that was under observation:

1. Checking e-mail through either a POP- or IMAP-based client. (You can send mail, since this doesn’t usually require an account password. POP and IMAP Protocols do not encrypt passwords.)
2. Logging in to an Internet site over an insecure Web page.
3. FTPing a file to a remote account.
4. Opening a telnet session to a remote host.

To maintain security, use applications that provide encrypted communications. For e-mail, use a Web-based system that offers an SSL connection. Newer versions of IMAP-based mail also offer encryption. If you need to use remote host connections such as telnet and FTP, utilize SSH services for a secure connection. An option that serves all these purposes is the VPN gateway. Visit http://net-services.ufl.edu/provided\_services/VPN for free VPN encryption software. For further information on wireless at UF, check the UF Wireless homepage at <http://net-services.ufl.edu/wireless>.

Free Resource Counseling Available

By Ali Kane, Resource Counselor

As the new UFLaw Resource Counselor, I hope you new students are adjusting comfortably and that returning students are ready for the new semester. I am available to you for free, confidential individual counseling sessions, and am happy to serve as a listening ear and to provide a warm, nonjudgmental space. I can help you work with whatever challenges are presenting themselves in your lives — school-related or involved with family, relationships, personal well-being and so on — and help you improve the quality and degree of satisfaction in your life. Contact me through Student Affairs or e-mail me at alokane@ufl.edu.

My job is to help you balance the work and stress of law school with activities and support groups that augment the quality of your experience here. It is important to participate in activities that contribute to your relaxation, enjoyment and ability to function efficiently.

I have composed an informal survey to determine groups and classes that would be of the greatest benefit and interest. Filling it out entails no commitment, and is for my information (and eyes) only. You may remain anonymous. In this survey, I ask you to check off groups and classes that appeal to you.

Options include:

- Stress and time-management
- Yoga
- Meditation and other techniques for deep relaxation
- Creative expressions (e.g. easy, recreational art; stream of consciousness writing)
- Tennis and/or physical fitness
- Nutrition workshop or class
- Listening skills and clear communication workshop, class or group
- Support group for students who are parents
- Support group for married students

I am interested in your ideas and suggestions, and hope you include them on the survey. Please pick one up in Student Affairs and return it to the envelope labeled “Resource Counselor Surveys” outside Student Affairs. I hope to hear from you soon.

Resource counseling can help you deal with stress — school-related or otherwise.

Alumni Events Scheduled

‘Grand Guard’ Convenes

Members of the class of 1952 will be inducted into UF’s Grand Guard Sept. 26-28 during the busy Florida/Kentucky football weekend. Invitations already mailed to ’52 (and prior) grads. Music Law Conference organizers Brian Mencher (left) and Jason Gordon are working hard to schedule a unique event — the first UFLaw Music Law Conference — to be held here Oct. 4-6. The conference will feature panel sessions exploring industry legal and business issues, a bands showcase, music expo, demo listening exhibition and networking with entertainment attorneys and musicians. They will meet with volunteers every Monday until the conference begins Oct. 4 at 5:50 p.m. in 190A Holland Hall. For information or to register online, go to: www.law.ufl.edu/musiclawconference. To volunteer, contact Mencher (musiclawconference@hotmail.com).
