Students:

Good day! My name is Steve Adamczyk and I am the Law College Council President for the 2007-2008 school year. I am sure you have received many congratulations on your acceptance but I want to take this opportunity to welcome you as you embark on your legal education at the Levin College of Law.

The Law College Council is the umbrella organization which presides over the student organizations at the law school. Next year, we will be responsible for the disbursement and allocation of over $50,000 of student government and alumni contributions as well as act as the de facto student government for the law school itself. With over 30 registered student organizations, the law school is one of the most proactive and respected colleges at the University of Florida.

Additionally, the Law College Council plans to implement a series of programs next year to raise the level of leadership at the law school. As the future leaders of our communities, it is imperative that law students receive the necessary leadership skills along with the first class legal education offered at the Levin College of Law. The administration entrusts the Law College Council to be involved in various committees on campus and help make crucial decisions that affect all law students. Involvement in the student organizations allows students to interact and network with all the leaders of the law school as well as find like-minded peers as you become more specialized in an area of law.

You will find a wealth of knowledge within these classrooms and I encourage you to enjoy your time at the Levin College of Law and feel free to ask any questions about the student organizations and leadership opportunities available.

Sincerely,

Steve Adamczyk
Law College Council President
