AN OUTSTANDING TAX FACULTY
The graduate faculty of the LL.M. in International Taxation share a strong dedication to teaching and scholarly research, along with significant practical experience. They include the authors of major taxation textbooks and treatises widely used in law schools and in tax practice. They are full-time members of the College of Law faculty, and all of the students in the International Taxation program will have the opportunity to study with them. They are joined by visiting professors, research scholars, guest lecturers and panelists from many different countries.

A SUPERB INTERNATIONAL CURRICULUM
The LL.M. in International Taxation is designed as a challenging and rewarding program for full-time students that will help prepare them for careers in tax law. The degree requires the completion of 26 semester credits in taxation, with at least 13 of these credits in international tax courses. The curriculum for the LL.M. in International Taxation provides extensive and in-depth study of major problems and issues in international taxation, and includes International Taxation I & II; International Tax Planning; International Tax Policy; Tax Treaties; Comparative Taxation; Transfer Pricing; International Tax Seminars; and other courses, including independent study projects and the full range of courses in U.S. taxation.

EXCELLENT STUDENTS FROM AROUND THE WORLD
In recent years, students from more than 20 countries have attended the LL.M. in International Taxation Program, performed at a very high level, and enjoyed a challenging and rewarding experience. Admission to the LL.M. in International Taxation is open to both U.S. and international law school graduates; they will be considered for admission on the basis of outstanding credentials, including potential for distinguished performance, academic record, professional experience and geographic factors.

STATE-OF-THE-ART CLASSROOM AND RESEARCH FACILITIES
New classrooms and study areas for Graduate Tax students and a library containing one of the major tax collections in the country make the College of Law a leading academic environment for tax research and study.

MODERATE EXPENSES AND OPPORTUNITIES FOR FINANCIAL AID
All admitted students are considered for available financial aid, including scholarships and research assistantship appointments that may significantly reduce the cost of tuition and the cost of attending. The State of Florida also has "linkage institute" programs with several countries and regions that provide tuition assistance for selected students. Interested students should contact the Graduate Tax Program for additional information.

THE UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA
The University of Florida is one of the leading public universities in the United States; the Levin College of Law enjoys a national reputation. Gainesville has been rated one of the country’s most livable cities, with all the entertainment and cultural offerings as part of a major university, in an area with numerous lakes, rivers and springs, with many opportunities for outdoor recreation, an average temperature of about 21 degrees Celsius, and proximity to major cities in Florida and to both coasts.
