The Racialization of Latinos in the United States
From Manifest Destiny to the 2016 Presidential Election

WEDNESDAY • MARCH 21, 2018 • 12:00pm–1:00pm
Chesterfield Smith Ceremonial Classroom (Holland 180), UF Levin College of Law
Reception to follow

Laura E. Gómez, J.D., Ph.D.
Professor of Law, UCLA

Laura E. Gómez teaches at the UCLA School of Law, where her courses have included Civil Procedure, Criminal Law, and Constitutional Law (federalism) in the first-year curriculum and, in the advanced curriculum, courses in civil rights law and on the relationship between law and society. In addition to Manifest Destinies: The Making of the Mexican American Race—initially published in 2007 and released in a Second Edition in January 2018, her books include Misconceiving Mothers: Legislators, Prosecutors and the Politics of Prenatal Drug Exposure (1997) and Mapping “Race”: Critical Approaches to Health Disparities Research (2013). Gómez has served in a variety of leadership roles including as Interim Dean of Social Sciences at UCLA, as Vice Dean of the Law School, as President of the Law and Society Association, and as the founding Co-Director of the UCLA Law’s Critical Race Studies Program.

CSRRR@law.ufl.edu • 352-273-0614 • www.law.ufl.edu/centers/csrrr