Social Justice Scholarship

University of Florida Levin College of Law faculty produce compelling scholarship that examines the complex relationship between law and social justice. Their research encompasses not only issues of class, gender, race, and sexual orientation, but also access to healthcare, criminal law reform, gender identity, environmental law, and juvenile justice. We are happy to share a sampling of social justice scholarship that our faculty have published over the course of their careers. For a comprehensive listing of publications by individual faculty members, please visit their faculty profiles at www.law.ufl.edu/uflaw-faculty/faculty-and-staff-directory.
