D. Administrative Appointments

The Dean shall appoint persons to subordinate administrative positions, but if the appointee will be engaged in teaching and/or research, the appropriate appointments procedure must be followed. If the Dean (or Associate Dean) proposes that a previously hired administrator teach, the Dean or Associate Dean will refer the matter to the Non-Tenure Track Hiring and Review Committee in the normal course.

Comment: Subordinate administrative appointments are the prerogative of the Dean. He or she must be free to appoint to these positions persons in whom he or she has confidence, and with whom he or she can effectively work. A safeguard is provided to the faculty where such appointments are new and would, in part, involve teaching and research.

E. Term of Deanship and Dean Evaluation Committee

1. Term of Deanship

   It is the sense of the faculty that the Dean should not serve more than five years unless, upon favorable review by the faculty, he or she is requested to serve for an additional period not to exceed five years. The review process will be conducted early in the fifth year of the Dean's service by a special five-person Dean Evaluation Committee.

   This statement shall be forwarded to the president of the University and be communicated to all candidates for the office of Dean of the College of Law. It shall also be published in the Policy Manual of the College.

2. Election of the Dean Evaluation Committee

   a. Initiation of the election process of the Dean Evaluation Committee is the responsibility of the Promotion and Tenure Committee.

   b. Eligible faculty members to serve on the committee will include all voting faculty, with the exception of faculty on leave, visiting, or in retirement status (phased or drop) during the academic year during which the review process will be conducted. Every eligible faculty member shall be on the ballot unless s/he asks to be excused from consideration by notifying the chair of the Promotion and Tenure Committee by a deadline to be established by the committee chair.

   c. Faculty members eligible to vote shall include all voting faculty.
d. A ballot will be distributed in faculty mailboxes and via email containing the names of all eligible faculty. On the first ballot, each faculty member will select five faculty to serve on the committee.

e. Any faculty member who is named on a majority of the ballots cast will be on the committee. After the initial round, the number of names on the ballot will be reduced to four times the number of remaining committee positions that remain open, and that number will be selected by eliminating those with the lowest number of votes. For example, because there will be five members on the committee, if no one receives a majority vote on the first round, the faculty members (4 times the number of remaining “yes” votes) will be included on the second ballot. Thereafter voting will continue by rounds, electing anyone who receives a majority of ballots cast, and voting for each remaining slot on a ballot by multiplying the number of slots times 4 and selecting the faculty members with the highest vote totals. The ballots will continue until five committee members have been selected. Notice of each ballot will be sent via email, but paper ballots will be used for each round (available in mailboxes and also sent via email).

f. The chair of the P&T Committee shall notify the faculty by email of the date on which ballots will be available and the dates on which they are due (faculty will have 24 hours to vote on each round).

F. Filling Endowed Professorships

The power to select and fill endowed professorships from the ranks of the existing faculty shall be exercised by the Dean, and in the selection process the Dean is empowered to apply all criteria which best serve the interests of the College of Law.

Comment: From discussions of an ad hoc faculty committee appointed by Dean Read with many faculty members, it would appear that a sizeable majority of the faculty expressing an opinion favor deanal selection for a variety of reasons. Some felt that it would be too divisive to have the ultimate power rest with the faculty (or a committee thereof); others believed that the Dean would be more likely to reflect centrist values, better balancing competing interests within the College than a faculty committee or other entity. While virtually no support was voiced for selection by faculty or faculty committee, a few colleagues did advocate vesting the power of selection in an outside committee, consisting either solely of distinguished teachers at other institutions or those academics acting in conjunction with distinguished practitioners. Overall however, all members of the committee and a significant number of the faculty indicated a preference for the practice which most other schools apparently follow — deanal selection.
